

Dialysis services provider DSI Renal has acquired five clinics in the Macon, Georgia, area.

Following the deal, terms of which were not disclosed, the Nashville company will operate 17 dialysis clinics in Georgia, which includes plans for a new clinic east of Atlanta.

Kidney Center of Central Georgia will provide the medical directors for the new clinics.

"This is exactly the kind of partnership that DSI is working to build; a high quality physician practice partner with a regional network of state of the art facilities," Craig Goguen, DSI Renal president and CEO, said in a release.

In December 2014, The Wall Street Journal reported the Nashville company, which operates 97 clinics in 22 states, was pursuing a sale. DSI Renal was incorporated as Dialysis NewCo after DaVita spun out a group of clinics in its first iteration. The company was later bought by NEA and Frazier in 2011.
